

The New York Times

April's Most Popular Listings

All of the most visited listings on The New York Times's "Find a Home" site last month were in Brooklyn and Manhattan. Our list includes a $50 million penthouse in a Zaha Hadid-designed building, two Brooklyn houses, a financial district loft and an apartment in the East Village.

1

$50,000,000
520 West 28th Street, Penthouse No. 37
Chelsea

This five-bedroom, 6,853-square-foot home, in a building designed by the architect Zaha Hadid, was the most viewed (moving up from fourth place in March). It has massive walls of glass and multiple terraces; amenities include a pool and a private IMAX theater.

Broker: Corcoran Sunshine

$1,250,000
186 Seeley Street
Windsor Terrace, Brooklyn

Next was a two-family rowhouse with four bedrooms and two baths. Less than a block from Prospect Park, the home has prewar details, a terrace overlooking the backyard and private parking. It could revert to a single-family home, if desired.

Broker: The Corcoran Group

2

3

$985,000
315 East 12th Street, No. 8
East Village

Third was a pet-friendly two-bedroom, one-bath co-op on a tree-lined block, with a renovated kitchen and exposed brick. Building rules allow co-buying, buying for children and use as a pied-à-terre. There is a flexible subletting policy.

Broker: Douglas Elliman Real Estate

$1,950,000
140 Nassau Street, No. 6A
Financial District

A two-bedroom loft with vaulted ceilings and arched windows was the next most popular. The co-op, which has two spa-like bathrooms, intricate moldings, floor-to-ceiling closets and in-unit laundry, is in the Morse Building, dating to 1879.

Broker: Brown Harris Stevens

4

